PIECES OF PREPOSITIONED EQUIPMENT

STRATEGIC ASSETS

Most units deploying for DEFENDER-Europe 20 will bring their own equipment, while several will draw from Army Prepositioned Stock. In preparation, logisticians will draw equipment from various storage sites and move it via rail, line haul or convoy to training areas. Service members will then be issued the APS equipment to use in their training. APS sites are strategically located to ensure the U.S. military can be in the right place at the right time in case of a crisis.

DEFENDER-Europe 20 demonstrates the U.S. military's ability to quickly deploy a large combat-credible force to support NATO & respond to any crisis.
